The AWC Summer Workshop, and How I Spent my Summer Vacation

August in Atlanta epitomizes the so-called “dog days of summer.” The hot, humid weather makes me long for the cool, fresh, fall air. If you attended the July workshop, you’ve already experienced some of the hottest indoor temperatures I for one have endured in recent memory. The air conditioner in the room where the workshop was held had given up the ghost, and the three portable fans didn’t begin to keep anyone cool, even if you were lucky enough to be sitting right in front of one. A few people told me they felt like they were going to faint from the heat! But our workshop leaders, Kimberly Brock and Alison Law, kept their cool in spite of the suffocating venue with close to 100 sweaty people in it, and most everyone persevered until the bitter end.

Many of us have discovered that while the process of giving birth to a completed manuscript is difficult, marketing the book once it’s out in the world can make the writing process seem like a walk in the park. At least that’s been my experience. One of the things I’m asked about most frequently by our members has been how to develop a platform and a marketing plan in order to sell more books. As we all know, Social Media is a big part of that process, and judging from the turnout at this year’s July workshop, called Social Media 102, I’d say it’s a topic that’s been on a lot of people’s minds.

The day after the workshop, I flew to Eugene, Oregon to spend a week with my dad. Two days later my brother arrived from Keller, Texas, and the following afternoon we began my “West Coast Book Tour.” I put this in quotes because my tour consisted of two separate gatherings of friends and family. The first event was held at my dad’s house, where he and my brother played jazz on two pianos, one electric, the other a baby grand, while Dad’s singer performed old standards to warm up the audience for me. Then I did a brief book talk, after which I moved to the book-signing table, while the music continued in the background. I sold some books, which was great, but I also got to visit with some people I hadn’t seen in many years. The next day we repeated the process at the home of my childhood dentist, who is now dating Dad’s singer. My brother and I agreed that although we liked the man just fine, having him around still made us both a little nervous, and we kept an eye on him to be sure he didn’t sneak up on one of us with a needle full of Novocain. Our host decided that he would pay for any books his guests wanted, and that I should just keep a count and he would settle up with me after everyone left. Unfortunately, he failed to tell me that in advance, and instead whispered it in my ear during part two of the musical performance, after I had already sold two of my books for cold hard cash. He then instructed me to give the money back. One of the nice ladies offered to let me keep the money as a tip, to which I replied that no, that would be, well, kind of icky. For the rest of the evening, when guests approached me and asked how much the books were, I replied that the host was paying for them. This of course discouraged people from getting one, so as not to impose upon our host’s generosity. Still, I did sign a few books, and I met lots of lovely people. I also reconnected with some friends I hadn’t seen in twenty years or more. What I learned from the experience is that you can never be totally sure about how a book-signing event will turn out, so it’s best to approach it with an open mind and a clear understanding about the financial arrangements. I once gave a brief book talk to two bookstore employees, because no one else showed up. But I didn’t mind a bit. All these little things we do to promote our books can potentially pay off in the long run, just not always in the way we think they will.

It always feels a little strange going back to my hometown, especially when there are gatherings of old family friends. While the people have changed physically with the years, so many of the places that used to be part of my daily life are exactly the same. The air smells different in Eugene than it does in Atlanta, because there’s no humidity in Oregon, and better air quality. Even the intensity of the daylight seems different there somehow, perhaps owing to its location on the globe. But whatever the reason, when I step outside and take a deep breath of clean, fresh Oregon air, there’s no doubt that I’m back in the place where I grew up.

One thing, however, has changed about my hometown since the last time I visited. Inside the city limits, plastic bags are not given at the grocery store, or even at the mall. If you don’t bring your reusable bag with you, they’ll sell you a plain, brown paper bag for a nickel, or a reusable bag for thirty cents. My dad bought a pair of pants at the mall, and we walked away with nothing but the pants and a receipt. When I asked the cashier, he finally acknowledged that it made the loss prevention department have to work a little harder, with people carrying un-bagged merchandise out of the store. Eugene has always been extremely environmentally conscious, but that little twist took me by surprise.

As I write this, I’m on the airplane heading back toward Atlanta. I splurged on a first class ticket, thanks Dad, and I’ve got plenty of legroom. It was a great summer vacation, but now I’m looking forward to being home. I hope to see you soon!

Kind Regards,

Val
Presenting the Latest Atlanta Writers Conference on October 24-25: AWC Continues to Bring the Top Literary Professionals to You

Do you want the chance to earn a contract directly with a publishing editor or with a literary agent who will represent you to publishers? Do you want editors and agents to tell you what you’re doing wrong and doing right in your manuscript, synopsis, and query letter? Would you like to discuss your writing project with editors or agents to see if there’s any interest in the marketplace? If you answer, “Yes,” to any or all of these questions, then the Atlanta Writers Club has designed a conference for you:

We are pleased to announce the next Atlanta Writers Conference, with a total of ten editors and agents—seeking every genre in fiction from Christian and literary to fantasy and science fiction, and all major topics in non-fiction—plus three terrific guest speakers and new opportunities on October 24-25, 2014. Act fast to register with the editors and/or agents of your choosing.

So far, nine of our members have signed with agents they worked with at the 2012 or 2013 conferences (with more likely from May 2014), and three of them scored major book deals not long after signing with their agents. You could be the next writer to succeed!

On Friday, October 24 and Saturday, October 25, 2014, the Atlanta Writers Club will present its eleventh Atlanta Writers Conference. The goal of this conference is to give you access to ten top publishing editors and literary agents—always a new lineup, never any repeats—and to educate you with a workshop and talks by experienced authors. The editors and agents will respond to your pitch; critique the manuscript sample, query, and synopsis you submit in advance; critique your query letter during a Friday practice session so you can improve your work for Saturday; and educate you about the current environment of the publishing industry and the changing roles of editors, agents, and their clients.

You could be offered a contract based on the materials you’ve submitted: after every conference some AWC members sign with conference guests and realize their dream of publication (see testimonials: http://atlantawritersconference.com/testimonials/). You might be asked to send additional pages or an entire manuscript for their review. You certainly will know more about how your work is perceived by industry professionals, and you’ll gain valuable experience interacting one-on-one with them. You also will have fun, learn more about the publishing business, and get a chance to chat informally with these editors, agents, and your peers. We will have five editors and five agents in attendance: on Friday, October 24, we'll feature an Editors Q&A Panel to give you their viewpoints and on Saturday the 25th we will have an Agents Q&A Panel to focus on their experiences and advice. In addition, you can register for two critiques and two pitches from the start, as part of a conference package deal.

Moreover, we are featuring a special two-hour Workshop on Friday the 24th from Writer’s Digest editor and Conference special guest speaker Chuck Sambuchino, who will present “Platform & Social Media: How to Use Both to Make Connections and Sell More Books” with exercises, examples, and extensive Q&A. This workshop is for writers at all levels, from those just starting out to authors with books who want to build a larger audience.

With the Editors Q&A panel, Query Letter Critique, and the two-hour Workshop, it's definitely worth taking a half-day off from work on Friday the 24th so you can experience all of these educational and developmental opportunities!

On Saturday, October 25, while the morning critiques are held, award-winning author and educator Daniel Black will give two 75-minute presentations, and that afternoon while the pitch sessions are held, bestselling Lauretta Hannon will do two 75-minute presentations. Chuck's 45-minute talks on Friday and the 75-minute presentations on Saturday are free to those who register for any of the paid Conference activities. Finally, to close out the Conference on Saturday afternoon, we feature an award ceremony, where each editor and agent will present a certificate to participants for the best manuscript sample submitted for critique and for the best query letter pitched. Testimonial provider Marie Marquardt was awarded a certificate and you can see how it helped to change her life!

Those who have succeeded as a result of the conference aren't the only ones who are grateful for the experience. Conference guest Heather Alexander, Associate Editor for Dial Books, raved, “The Atlanta Writers Conference is a great place for writers to meet editors and agents, and learn some of the ins and outs of the publishing industry. What a great networking and learning opportunity!”

Register for one, some, or all of these Conference activities:
- Manuscript Critique on Saturday, October 25: $150
- Pitch on Saturday, October 25: $50
- Query Letter Critique on Friday, October 24: $50
- Workshop on Friday, October 24: $50
- Editor Q&A Panel on Friday, October 24: $30
- Agent Q&A Panel on Saturday, October 25: $30
- Atlanta Writers Conference Package “All Activities” option (all six activities above plus an extra manuscript critique and an extra pitch): $500

The editors and agents are:
Peter Blackstock, Grove Atlantic
Kat Brzozowski, Thomas Dunne Books
Nadeen Gayle, Serendipity Literary Agency
Katie Grimm, Don Congdon Associates
Silissa Kenney, St. Martin’s Press
Elizabeth Kracht, Kimberley Cameron & Associates
Mark Krotov, Melville House
Kelly O’Connor, William Morrow | Harper Voyager
Beth Phelan, The Bent Agency
Jennifer Udden, Donald Maass Literary Agency

Complete details about the Conference are on our Atlanta Writers Conference website (http://atlantawritersconference.com/about/).

If you have any questions about the conference, please contact George Weinstein, Atlanta Writers Conference Director at awconference@gmail.com.

You must use the online registration link at http://atlantawritersconference.com/ to register, so please do not send George an e-mail with your registration requests.

Joe Barry Carroll

Joe Barry Carroll is a seven-foot-tall NBA All-Star, wealth advisor, philanthropist, painter and author. He was the first overall pick in the 1980 NBA draft. Carroll's NBA totals are 12,455 points, 5,404 rebounds, 1,264 assists and 1,122 blocked shots, which included a career high average of 24 points in the 1983-84 season. He began painting in 2011 and in 2014 published “Growing Up ... In Words and Images”, a memoir featuring his original art paired with narratives about self-discovery, family, basketball, love, and money. 100 percent of book sale proceeds are donated to selected non-profit organizations including the Georgia Innocence project. In May 2014 Carroll received the Champions for Justice Award from the Atlanta Braves and the Center for Civil and Human Rights.

At the age of 26 Carroll founded the BroadView Foundation to financially support and participate in organizations and programs that serve lower socio-economic groups and individuals in communities of color. In addition to establishing college scholarships, Carroll and BroadView have funded afterschool programs, elder care, Aid to Children of Imprisoned Mothers, Kenny Leon’s True Colors Theatre, Task Force for the Homeless, The Georgia Innocence Project, and WABE, Atlanta’s NPR station. Upon retiring from the NBA in 1991, Carroll relocated to Atlanta, Georgia where in 1993 he founded The Carroll Group a wealth advisory company serving high-net-worth families.

Decatur, Georgia, July 16, 2014 --- Longtime DeKalb resident and Atlanta Writers' Club member A. Trauring's second novel The Beaded Necklace has been published by AT Press. This is the follow-up to his startling debut A Different Kind of Twin, released this past March.

The Beaded Necklace is another amateur sleuth story, featuring the same central characters as in the first book. The lead snoop, Amy Clear, now is a college junior. A series of murders on campus give her the opportunity to ingratiate herself with a police detective, and she finds learning professional techniques and forensics much more appealing than studying for a psychology exam.

“The transfer of one mind to another body is a standard Science Fiction premise,” Trauring says, “but usually it’s creepy and evil. In A Different Kind of Twin I wanted to see what could happen if a person’s body was dying and their mind was somehow added to another person. Could the two personalities inside the one body get along? Cooperate? Become friends? The answers to those questions were ‘yes,’ and The Beaded Necklace explores the next level of bonding, cooperation, and problem solving.”

Readers can learn more about A. Trauring, The Beaded Necklace, and the projected series of novels at the website http://atrauring.weebly.com.

Free Copy Editing: Need a Second Set of Eyes?

Harold ("Psaigne") Simmons is a retired senior with time on his hands who has volunteered to do copy editing at no charge to Atlanta Writers Club members. Though he doesn't make any claims to be a professional editor, he has a lifetime of experience to lend. Psaigne is a voracious reader, has a vocabulary "to die for", and is a stickler for proper grammar and punctuation. You may contact him directly at psaigne@gmail.com to forward your manuscript and discuss turnaround time.

Please note, copy editing consists of grammar, punctuation, word usage, and consistency. It is not a developmental or structural edit addressing character development or story arc, pacing and the like.

The offer is good through September 30th.

(Suwanee, GA June 1, 2014)-- On Thursday, August 14th at 6:30 p.m. Bestselling author and renowned writer's workshop conference speaker Joe Samuel Starnes will host a free workshop and book discussion at the Suwanee branch of the Gwinnett County Public Library. Starnes will focus his discussion on Research: A Writer's Best Friend and A Writer's Worst Enemy—Using Research in Your Fiction.

Eudora Welty wrote “the art that speaks most clearly, explicitly, directly, and passionately from its place of origin will remain the longest understood.” Starnes, author of the novels Fall Line and Calling, will discuss how fiction can come alive with details acquired from research, giving your short stories and novels a sense of verisimilitude. He will offer practical advice to aspiring writers about conducting research, and he will offer writers tips on avoiding the pitfalls and delays that doing research can bring to fiction writing.

The Suwanee branch is located at 361 Main Street Suwanee, GA. To learn more about Gwinnett County Public Library programs and services, please visit www.gwinnettpl.org, find GwinnettLibrary on Facebook, Twitter, or call 770.978.5154
Critique Group Updates

For the Lawrenceville/Snellville Critique group—Ken Schmanski’s email address is now kschmanski@aol.com

Procedure for Joining AWC Critique Groups:

1. All requests from AWC members to join a critique group are to be forwarded to ron@hraiken.com. Ron Aiken currently serves as the Critique Group Coordinator for the AWC.

2. Members should include in their request:
   a. Their location
   b. Availability
   c. Genre
   d. Writing sample (first chapter, short story, poetry)

3. Based upon information provided by members in their email request and available openings, the Coordinator will attempt to place members. Coordinator will periodically poll critique groups for status updates.

4. Coordinator will forward member’s information to appropriate critique group leader. Genre is taken into account, but members generally will be placed first come-first served.

5. Coordinator will compile and maintain member “wait list.”

6. Coordinator will attempt to form new critique groups from the wait list.

Havoc—Steven F. Freeman

AWC member Steven F. Freeman announces the release of his novel, Havoc, the fourth in a series entitled The Blackwell Files.

Description:

When Cryptologist Alton Blackwell takes his girlfriend, FBI Agent Mallory Wilson, on a surprise trip to Italy, the couple expects the vacation of a lifetime, but their pleasure is short-lived. Intent on selling Vidulum Inc.'s proprietary technology to the highest bidder, a rogue employee of the high-tech company arranges a clandestine meeting at one of Rome's most famous tourist attractions. Rather than collecting a huge payday, however, the company turncoat encounters a lethal surprise. When Alton and Mallory rush to assist the dying scientist, they find themselves pulled into the subsequent murder investigation.

Foreign and domestic agents, corporate spies, intellectual-property thieves, and shadowy underworld figures race to acquire the technical files stored on the dead employee's missing cellphone and reap the billions of dollars and technological superiority now at stake.

Despite their efforts to leave the tragedy behind and continue their vacation, Alton and Mallory soon learn their own lives are in danger. They are left with no choice but to join forces with the Roman police in an effort to crack the case. While diving into the investigation, the discovery of another man in Mallory's past disrupts Alton's plan to move his relationship with her to a new level.

As they encounter unexpected twists at a breakneck pace, Alton and Mallory must summon all their intellectual powers to reveal the truth behind the Vidulum employee's death and track down the missing technological plans before a life-threatening end game can be set in motion.

Thriller/mystery author Steve Freeman is a former member of the US Army's Signal Corps, a twenty-six year employee of a large American technology company, and an avid traveler who has visited five continents. The novels of The Blackwell Files draw from his firsthand knowledge of military service, the tech industry, and the diverse cultures of our world.
Uncork the wine. Bring out the calming chocolate. Ali Lawrence’s diva sister, Janelle Jennings, is making an unexpected visit to their hometown of Willoughby, Georgia, and Ali needs help. Since they were schoolgirls, Ali has suffered ridicule and criticism from her prom queen, beauty pageant older sister, whom their mother still coddles at Ali’s expense. Ali is suspicious of her sister’s motives for visiting Willoughby, and especially her odd behavior and uncharacteristically long stay. Something’s not quite right, and Ali is both curious and concerned.

During this visit, Ali vows to stop being a bitter doormat and stand up to Janelle. But when Ali discovers a secret that has the potential to destroy Janelle’s career and tarnish her reputation, will she expose her sister, or, for the sake of family unity, will she protect her? Can the sisters finally come to terms with each other, admire their achievements, and ignore their faults, or will their relationship continue to disintegrate, bringing bedlam to Willoughby in the process?

Someone has to take the first step: Will it be Janelle in her stepladder stilettos or Ali in her ratty, old running shoes?

Membership Renewal—What to Expect

The AWC has an automated system for tracking memberships and alerting members when it's time to renew. You will receive an e-mail from the system (awcmembership@principalds.com) one month before your membership expiration date. If you haven't renewed within two weeks of expiration, you will receive another e-mail and a final e-mail one week from expiration if you haven't yet renewed. If the expiration date for your membership passes without renewal, the system will mark your membership as expired. It is a good e-mail practice to check your spam/junk folder to see if any legitimate e-mail has been misfiled there, possibly including the email you'll receive from awcmembership@principalds.com prior to the expiration of your membership.

It’s time to call on our members for support, and ask for volunteers to help out with some of the many exciting programs heading our way in the coming months.

We’ll need check-in volunteers for each of our future monthly meetings. If you would like to volunteer for a specific meeting, please let VP of Operations Jennifer Wiggins know which month you prefer. Or, if you would like to volunteer but are unsure about your availability until the time gets nearer, she will gladly include you in her list of volunteers to contact at a later date. Please respond to: jennifer.wiggins1@aol.com.

Membership Information – The Atlanta Writers Club

Regular membership dues are $40 per year per person. Students can join for $30 per year. Family members of active AWC members can join for $20 per year.

We are one of the best literary bargains in town. The Atlanta Writers Club is simply a group of writers that work together to help each other improve their skills and attain their writing goals. Anyone can join, with no prior publication requirements. Here are a just a few membership benefits:

Monthly meetings. On the third Saturday of each month, our members gather to listen and learn from two guest speakers who cover a broad range of topics and genres, and come to us from many facets of the literary world. Our speakers include published authors, literary agents, editors, playwrights and poets, just to name a few. Please refer to our list of upcoming guest speakers in this newsletter.

Workshops. Your membership provides access to outstanding writing workshops. Some are free with membership and others are provided at a discounted price. Watch for announcements about upcoming workshops.

Twice-Yearly Writers Conferences. This is your opportunity to spend time face to face with a literary agent or editor and have the chance to pitch your work. Conferences include agent Q & A panels, writing workshops, and a social gathering where you’ll get to meet and talk with the agents and editors in a more informal setting.

Critique Groups. We now have approximately twenty (20) different critique groups available to members. Scattered about the Atlanta metro area, these critique groups meet regularly to read each other’s writings and recommend modifications.

Writing Contests With Cash Prizes. Contests are held in the spring and fall, with a wide variety of formats and topics.

Monthly Newsletter. Our monthly newsletter, the eQuill, provides the opportunity for our members to advertise their book launches and book signings to a wide reaching mailing list. And, it will keep you up to date with news about writing opportunities and literary events across the Southeast and beyond.

Decatur Book Festival Participation. The Atlanta Writers Club has a tent at the Decatur Book Festival each year, that’s staffed by member volunteers. It’s a great way to get involved in the largest book festival in the area.

Potential members are invited to attend a first meeting as our guest. After that, we’re sure you will want to become a member and take advantage of all the benefits that come with it. You may join The Atlanta Writers Club at any of our events or meetings, or pay online at our website using PayPal at http://www.atlantawritersclub.org/membership.html.

If you have additional questions, contact AWC president Valerie Connors at valerie@atlantawritersclub.org.
